Health and safety – looking back to the future?
The way forward for a new generation

Tyne and Wear Branch and Sports Ground and Events Group joint networking event
Discovery Museum, Blandford Square, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, NE1 4JA
18–19 March 2013
Health and safety – looking back to the future?

2012 was a monumental year for the UK. Olympic competition and the humanity it showcased inspired not just the nation but the whole world. In 2013 times remain tough, with greater austerity demands being placed on governments, businesses and ultimately households.

How can the UK attract and build new business, while keeping existing companies in business? Can health and safety play any role in these ‘new shoots’ of enterprise?

At this seminar heavyweights from around the world will discuss real-life examples of recent business success and how health and safety can save lives as well as money – even when times are at their toughest!

You will hear professionals discussing examples, ranging from the Olympic Opening Ceremony to the Glastonbury Festival. They will be complemented by international leaders in safety, showcasing new thoughts on how to address perceptions of the health and safety industry.

All this will be further supported by the citing of the latest social media that your business may dismiss at its peril!

These concepts and case studies will be transferable to your industry or business and your roles or those of your managers, teams and colleagues.

Who should attend?
Business managers, directors, team leaders of all business categories, health and safety practitioners, event industry professionals, business and marketing students, IOSH Branch and Group members, and non-members.

Why should you attend?
- Gain insights into the latest thinking on health and safety and their future in your business and industry
- Learn what political paths are available to you to gain support and change for your business
- Learn how the Olympic Games was the ‘greatest show on earth’ last year and how it was done
- Learn about the latest forms of social media and how you can use these to your benefit – even with health and safety!
- Join your peers to debate health and safety – the future for officers? HR – recruitment and retention – skills analysis – do you need sales people instead of engineers?
- Get important legal updates: has anything changed since the Lord Young and Löfstedt reviews? A legal reality check with today’s agenda and your future actions
